CottonConnect recognizes the importance of providing a supportive environment where Stakeholders feel empowered to address grievances and complaints related to unjust treatment, harassment, and health and safety in the workplace. In line with our commitment to fostering a fair, ethical and inclusive workplace culture, this Policy has been developed to establish a structured framework for addressing the grievances and complaints of Stakeholders effectively.

We aim to ensure that every Stakeholder's voice is heard and that all individuals working with CottonConnect are treated with dignity, respect, and equality throughout the redressal process.

If you have difficulty at any stage of this policy because of a disability or because English is not your first language, you should discuss the situation with your manager or the HR team as soon as possible.

V. GRIEVANCE AND COMPLAINTS POLICY

1. Definitions and Meaning

- 1.1. "Grievance" refers to a legitimate written grievance raised by a Stakeholder which is a serious allegation or concern or any such issue which remains unresolved under Informal Complaint Management System, relating to matters outlined under this Policy.
- 1.2. "Informal Complaint" refers to a concern raised by a Stakeholder concerning an action, treatment, behavior, or condition perceived by a Stakeholder in relation to CottonConnect, as unfair or inappropriate, typically informal in nature and serves as a reason for dissatisfaction;
- 1.3. "Complainant" refers to any Stakeholder who raises a Grievance or Informal Complaint under this Policy;
- 1.4. "Respondent" refers to any individual against whom allegations have been made following the raising of a Grievance or Informal Complaint;

2. Complaint and Grievance Redressal Systems

An Informal Complaint and a Grievance are both forms of expressing dissatisfaction within the workplace, but they differ in their formality, scope and redressal. In this regard, we have created a dual redressal system and framework to address the disputes of Stakeholders effectively.

2.1. Initial assessment and investigation:

Upon receipt of any information from the Stakeholder, an initial assessment upon the veracity, facts and parties involved is undertaken by CottonConnect. This assessment will be conducted by a senior HR representative and may involve further informal investigation with the Stakeholder. Based on the result of such assessment, the charge levelled by a Stakeholder is designated either under the Informal Complaint Management System or Grievance Redressal Management System. The decision of CottonConnect in this regard shall be final and binding on the Stakeholders.

2.2. Informal Complaint Management System:

Any Informal Complaint shall be treated under the Informal Complaint Management System by CottonConnect wherein the Complainant and Respondent in the presence of an authorized official of CottonConnect shall be given an opportunity to amicably resolve the Informal Complaint amongst themselves.

An Informal Complaint Management System is designed to provide a platform for Complainants to address their concerns and disputes in a swift and amicable manner. This system allows individuals to bring forward their complaints through informal channels, such as discussions with supervisors or managers, with the aim of resolving issues promptly and effectively. The system operates within a 30 biz days timeline to ensure timely resolution of complaints.

However, if a dispute remains unresolved to the satisfaction of the complainant within this timeframe, it will be referred back to the senior HR representative who can determine either the closure of the issue, an alternative redress or escalation to the formal Grievance Redressal Management System. This ensures that unresolved grievances receive proper attention and are handled through a structured process to achieve fair and equitable outcomes.

2.3. Grievance Redressal Management System:

Under the Grievance Management System established by CottonConnect, any complaint escalated from the Informal Complaint Management System or directly submitted/accepted as a Grievance shall be addressed.

Having determined in the initial assessment that there are substantial matters to address, the Senior HR representative will expand their informal investigation into a thorough and impartial formal investigation, ensuring the involvement of relevant parties and gathering necessary evidence. There may be occasions when the HR representative assigns the investigation to a local manager or representative who is better placed to meet with the relevant individuals. The investigation shall be completed within a reasonable timeframe, and the outcome will be communicated to the Complainant, along with recommendations on the next appropriate step (see below for the further process) which is most likely to be a grievance meeting.

5. Redressal Process

5.1. Step-1: Dealing with Informal Complaints Amicably

- 1) Stakeholders are encouraged to try and resolve minor disagreements and disputes amicably.
- 2) Minor misunderstandings, differences of opinion, or small-scale conflicts that have little impact on work performance or relationships are some examples of non-critical disputes. These disputes can often be addressed through open communication, cooperation, and mutual understanding among involved parties.
- 3) However, disputes involving harassment, discrimination, safety concerns, or violations of Company policies should be addressed through the formal grievance process outlined in subsequent steps.
- 4) If any Stakeholder is unsure about the criticality of a dispute or disagreement, they are encouraged to seek guidance from trusted line managers or the Human Resources department. In cases where discussions with the relevant party do not yield satisfactory results, Stakeholders are welcome to proceed directly to step 2.

5.2. Step-2: Dealing with Formal Grievances

- 1) The Stakeholder should document their grievance in writing and lodge it as per the procedure outlined under para 4 (Mode of Filing Formal Grievance).
- 2) The Formal Grievance submission should focus on presenting the facts of the Grievance raised with a clear explanation of the Stakeholder's concerns. This should include a brief description of the nature of the complaint, dates and names of individuals involved, including any witnesses. If there is relevant documentation, this should be included. The Complainant must refrain from using insulting or abusive language.

- 3) The designated person within the HR team shall promptly acknowledge the Formal Grievance email and confirm the next steps for the investigation in writing back to the Stakeholder.
- 4) The amount of any investigation required will depend on the nature of the allegations and will vary from case to case. It may involve interviewing and taking statements from witnesses and reviewing documents. The investigation will involve hearing from both parties i.e., the Complainant and the Respondent. Stakeholders must co-operate fully and promptly with an investigation.
- 5) On completion of the investigation, the Complainant and the Respondent will be informed of the outcome and arrangements for a grievance hearing. If the investigation determined that the grievance was not substantiated or the facts were not forthcoming, they will be informed that the grievance is closed with no further action.

5.3. Step-3 Grievance Hearing

- 1) The designated person will arrange a grievance meeting with the Complainant, usually within 7 (Seven) working days of the completion of the investigation. The designated person will be a manager, Director or other appropriate Stakeholder who is capable of conducting a grievance procedure. Ideally the same person will see through the entire process from investigation to completion, but this is not always possible. A senior HR representative will support them at the meeting.
- 2) The minutes of this meeting will be recorded in writing to ensure accurate documentation of the discussions and resolutions proposed.
- 3) The purpose of a grievance meeting is to enable the Complainant to explain their grievance and assist CottonConnect in reaching a decision based on the available evidence. Both the Complainant and Respondent will have the opportunity to put forward any relevant information at the meeting and may call witnesses.
- 4) The designated person hearing the grievance and the HR representative will reach a decision based on the evidence whether the grievance is upheld. They will write to the Complainant, usually within seven days, to inform them of the outcome and any further action that will be taken to resolve the issue. They will also remind them of their right to appeal against the outcome if they are not satisfied.
- 5) They will also reach a decision on any action that is required against the Respondent and the severity of any formal action taken shall be determined by the outcome of the grievance and the seriousness of any breaches of conduct.

- 6) Disciplinary action against the Respondent will be conducted under the relevant procedure and with the involvement of the appropriate manager, director or Stakeholder.
- 7) The designated person shall provide the Complainant with confirmation of a disciplinary decision against the Respondent within 30 (Thirty) days from the conclusion of the grievance process. Disciplinary action is not the only potential outcome and training, or mediation processes may also be applicable and will be confirmed to the Complainant.

5.4. Step-4 Appeal:

- 1) If either the Complainant or Respondent is not satisfied with the decision and wish to appeal against a formal grievance meeting outcome, they must submit the appeal within 15 (fifteen) working days to the Chief People Officer.
- 2) The Chief People Officer will convene to hear all appeals from both the Complainant and the Respondent and will subsequently provide recommendations.
- 3) In cases deemed appropriate or of significant severity, the Chief People Officer may opt to consult with the C.E.O/C.O.O before making a final decision.
- 4) The decision made by the Chief People Officer will be communicated in writing to both the Complainant and Respondent, and it will be considered final.
- 5) If the Respondent wishes to appeal against a disciplinary penalty, then they will have the right to appeal under that procedure.
- 6) Please note that the appeal request should clearly specify the grounds for the appeal. The appeal should be raised only under the following grounds:
 - The seriousness of the disciplinary action.
 - The filing of an unfounded or malicious complaint against the Respondent.
 - Allegations of partiality or bias during the grievance process.
